Join the top international leaders of the industry from: Cameroon, Gauteng, Ghana, Kenya, Morocco, Rwanda, Tunisia, Zimbabwe, Belgium, Finland, France, Italy, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Russia, Spain, Switzerland, UK, India, Pakistan, Brazil, Mexico and USA

2011 brings back the Microfinance Investment Summit in threefold! This four day summit takes a deep dive into the microfinance challenges and opportunities in Africa; brings you the newest microfinance developments taking place on a global scale and offers you a focus day on the latest, most innovative initiatives in microinsurance. Join an unparalleled showcase of leaders who will share their experiences and insights on:

- Capitalising on international partnerships to build a successful microfinance market in Africa
- Sourcing your capital to promote MSE finance in Africa
- Maximising your private equity investments to leverage further returns
- Establishing the best approaches to catalyse potential partnerships for MFIs
- Identifying and implementing the instruments that can make currency hedging a market for all countries
- Bringing social performance to the front to ensure responsible finance
- Injecting innovation into microinsurance distribution models to increase penetration and lower costs
- Incorporating the right strategies to make microinsurance beneficial to the market and viable for providers

There is no doubt that both the microfinance and microinsurance markets are continuously evolving: private equity investments are growing, SME finance is expanding in developing countries and current microinsurance distribution models are becoming more and more innovative.

But with this progress come the challenges in the form of newly enforced legislation, cut-throat competition and the everyday barriers that today's economy provides. What impacts one country can impact us all. This summit will focus on addressing each challenge and taking the necessary steps to overcome them. Join our panel of Thought Leaders – Financial Institutions, DFIs, IFIs, Private Equity Investors, Fund Managers, MFIs, MIVs and all other major stakeholders – who will share their experiences and disclose the tried and tested strategies that have made them the leaders they are today:

The MCF – Winners of the SME Finance Challenge – Demonstrate how to successfully provide access to finance for SMEs in developing countries

AfDB – Highlight their current initiatives on supporting the microfinance industry in Africa

FEFISOL Microfinance Fund – Reveal how to optimise your social investments for sustainable industry growth

Women World's Banking – Uncover how going beyond traditional distribution channels can be both beneficial and cost-effective

Join us for:
MICROFINANCE AFRICA: CLOSING THE GAP – 5th July 2011
MICROFINANCE INVESTMENT SUMMIT – 6th & 7th July 2011
MICROINSURANCE FOCUS DAY – 8th July 2011

And much more!

You cannot afford to miss the only industry gathering that will give you the tools to arm yourself with best practice strategies to maximise all opportunities in microfinance. This is the ONE event where the networking counts, relationships are forged and deals are made.

10.40 Morning Refreshments

11.20 Fundamental Weaknesses in Microfinance and How We Can Improve the Industry

Asad Mahmood
Managing Director, Global Social Investment Funds, Deutsche Bank

The microfinance industry is facing its biggest crisis in its history - From India to Bosnia. Microfinance's pendulum has swung from being considered an angel to being regarded as the devil. The reality is somewhere in the middle.

Excessive drive for profit and the related high growth have left the industry disconnected to its clients and its mission and exposed it to increasing political and media risk. Lack of product innovation and focus on credit product has only weakened microfinance: its relationship to the clients it serves and the potential it has for providing essential services to the poor segment of the population.

The industry has and is setting up various initiatives that will change microfinance for the better in the next two to three years. The outlook of microfinance can be greatly enhanced if customer service is once again made paramount.

In today's microfinance market, too many funds are being allocated to too few institutions. Many infant MFIs are being financially excluded due to lack of history, experience and being considered as too much of a risk factor. Join an invited panel of leaders from both sides debating the key challenges regarding how MFIs can compete in saturated markets and where the solutions may lie.

- Determining the measures that MFIs can take to overcome their lack of history and experience challenges
- Identifying the best approaches to raise the visibility of infant MFIs and catalyse potential partnerships
- Examining funding alternatives:
 - gaining financial access to grants
 - preparing MFIs for multiple lending
 - monitoring each individual covenant to ensure you stay above the law
 - setting up the right systems to track quarterly reportings
- Uncovering the criteria that MFIs need to be considered eligible for funding
 - what are the expectations of investors in terms of:
 - business plan
 - social and financial objectives

- portfolio
 - governance
 - operations
 - staff management
 - technology
 - interest rates
- What are the main obstacles MFIs are encountering for ticking every box?
 - Exploring strategies that enable investors and MFIs to meet in the middle:

MFIs

- Limiting risk by proving commercial viability and social performance
- Protecting clients against overindebtedness whilst still remaining solvent
- Best practice examples of obtaining repayments from customers
- Increasing transparency for lenders
- Enhancing reporting activities to demonstrate tangible results
- What can MFIs expect from investors in return?
 - employing investor know-how to optimise recruitment, training and expertise
 - upgrading technology to scale up outreach

Investors

- What are some reasonable expectations for optimising MFIs?
 - supporting MFIs who do not have the bandwidth to deploy your minimal capital criteria
 - helping tier 2 MFIs grow and be investment-ready
- Outlining the minimal accepted requirements for MFIs to be considered a sound investment
- Applying both due diligence and credit risk to institutions that are not being covered
- Setting up a framework to give MFIs more structure and monitor their progress
